

Dr. Sunita Maheshwari Profile

Dr. Sunita Maheshwari, awarded 2014's 'Amazing Indian' by Times Now, is a US Board certified Pediatric Cardiologist who did her training at Yale University in the US. She was the winner of the 'Young Clinician Award' from the American Heart Association and the 'Best Teacher Award' at Yale University. She was nominated one of the Top 20 women achievers in medicine in India in 2009.

She is passionate about telemedicine and cofounded and is the Chief Dreamer at Teleradiology Solutions and RXDX multi speciality acute care clinics in Bangalore, apart from incubating other start ups in the telehealth space such as Healtheminds-a telecounselling initiative and a trust fund People4people that has put up over 200 playgrounds for children in government schools in India.

Her other interests include teaching and spreading the word about children with heart disease and what can be done for them. She currently runs the first of its kind innovative e-teaching program, accredited by the National Board in Delhi, for postgraduates in Pediatric Cardiology all across India. Additionally she has written 'a chota book of parenting' for Indian parents.

Her efforts over the past decade to use technology to successfully educate doctors and to help patients in remote areas of India and other parts of the world was recognised when she was chosen as one of the few innovative entrepreneurs invited to meet President Obama on his trip to India.

Young Clinician
Award' From The American Heart
Association

Best Teacher
Award' At Yale
University

Top 20 Women
Achievers In
Medicine In India
In 2009.

Times Now
'Amazing Indian',
2014